TONKIN is a game for two players, each of whom has 10 tokens of one colour. The players take it in turns to place their tokens with the aim of filling an entire row with their colour. The row can have 3, 5 or 7 spaces – the length is irrelevant. If a player does not manage to fill a row when they place their token, the other player takes a turn. The player who completes a row first wins. The rules are easy to explain, but winning the game is a real challenge.

Each token sits firmly in place in the slots, which are clearly set out. The large, cylindrical tokens can be handled with ease by children and seniors alike. This is a true generation game since it can be played by people of all ages.

It is thought that this game has its origins between the end of the 19th and the start of the 20th century. The name TONKIN (the northernmost part of Vietnam that became a French colony in 1885) would suggest that it was played as far back as the French colonial era. Even today, the game has lost none of its appeal.

TONKIN is hand-made to the highest standards of German craftsmanship.
